This Month's News from the Editor.

Well the year is running away fast, soon it will be November and that means the annual breakup BBQ, details will be forthcoming as time draws closer. I will be away as from the 19th November and that means that this edition of the newssheet will be the last for this year from me. However, having said that, you will receive updates from ANDFHG should the need arise regarding any important announcement.

We are please to advise all members that we have purchased a Black and White Laser Photo Copier, capable of printing both A3 and A4 size copies, and a Colour Printer which is capable of printing A3 size sheets, this will be a great advantage in printing those family tree charts that members have been asking for, or for any other documents.

Access to the Photo Copier and Printer is available when the clubrooms are open on research and networking days (see calendar this issue for times etc). I must hasten to point out that because of the high cost of toner used in the Copier and Printer and paper etc, a nominal fee will be applicable to all printing, to allay running costs.

A reminder to all members that membership renewals fell due at the end of July, and a number has not yet renewed, nevertheless we have continued issuing all publications such as this newssheet and "The Compass" to our complete members list however, there are a number of people that do not have broadband facilities and have opted for hard copies of these publications, with the cost of postage now exceeding $27 per quarter it is time to reconsider continuing in supplying un-financial members with hard copies. Consequently all members remaining un-financial at the end of October will be removed from our mailing list. This decision is not an easy one, but we are bound to provide services, and that includes all publications, to our supporting members.

On a brighter note, the December edition of "The Compass" is in its final stages of production, and will be delivered to all members in November. I am still asking for some participation from members by submitting a short article on any subject that could be of interest to other readers, this could take the form of a success story, a historical subject of your home town, an interesting hobby (other than genealogy), or an article on an interesting family member.

There is no need to submit pages and pages of material, about half an A4 page would be sufficient. Some people are afraid to compose any article because they feel that they are incapable of producing a legible script, well you never know what you can do until you try, but the truth of the matter is that I need your help in ensuring that The Compass continues to be the publication it has been over the last 2 years, so please consider your options and participate. Any submission can be sent to me at editor@andfg.org.

Some other news which appears in this bulletin, thanks to the efforts of Helen Stein, we have finally secured a tour of the North Road Cemetery, the details are on an attached flyer. This Tour is a once in a lifetime opportunity, and is one that should not be missed. If you have never been on a Cemetery Tour before then you are in for a real treat, we look forward to see you there.

Report on the Talk night presented on September 16 by Sandra McKessar.

The Spirits of Gallipoli

The Gallipoli Peninsular is a rough and beautiful place, rugged, stark and now peaceful. Standing on Anzac Cove, looking up at the cliffs, it is hard to imagine how the men made it up there, in the dark, under fire, on that first day.

There is an "essence" at Gallipoli that reaches out and touches you. It's difficult to breathe; a lump forms in your throat and as a mother, tears well thinking of the heartache caused by this place.

There are many books and reference materials about the campaign; every aspect is analysed. The Anzac legend and the mateship ethic is dissected and examined. We were struck by the men themselves, who were they, who grieved for them? 7,249 members of the AIF never left Gallipolis's shores. We had to find out all I could about them. "The Spirits of Gallipoli" project was born.

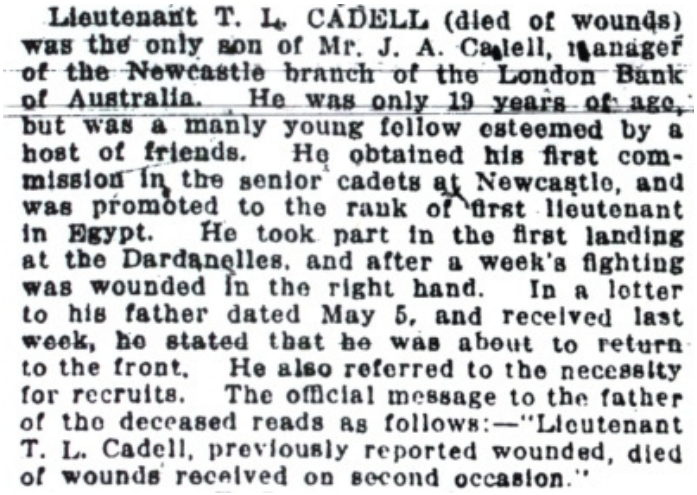
If you are trying to find any information about a member of the AIF, you begin at the Australian War Memorial (www.awm.gov.au) and the National Archives of Australia (www.naa.gov.au). From here you can obtain the embarkation papers, the enlistment forms, unit diaries, rolls of honour and perhaps a photo.

There were a number of 'honour' books compiled after the war (for example The All Australian Memorials). Newspapers are an invaluable source of information. However, trying to find information for an individual can be difficult, even in early 1916, some families did not know the fate of their men.

So, we began searching through as many sources as we could find, indexing names and scanning material. To date, we have found photos of more than half of the men at Gallipoli. We have some information for more than 70% of them. One of the men we have found information for is Thomas Leonard CADELL.

Thomas was born on 7 December 1896 in Goulburn, NSW and was the only son of John A and Mary G Cadell. John was the Manager of the London Bank of Australia, in Newcastle. On 3 September 1914, Thomas enlisted, embarking with the 3rd Battalion on The Euripides on 20 October 1914. He fought during the battle of the landing and, on 7 May, received a gun shot wound to his right hand. He returned to his unit on 22 May.

On 21 June he was seriously wounded by a shrapnel bullet that penetrated his liver. He was transferred to the Hospital Ship Gascon, where he died on 22 June. He was buried at sea, and is commemorated on panel 19 at Lone Pine. He is also commemorated on the Newcastle War Memorial.



Lieutenant T. L. CADELL (died of wounds) was the only son of Mr. J. A. Cadell, manager of the Newcastle branch of the London Bank of Australia. He was only 19 years of age, but was a manly young fellow esteemed by a host of friends. He obtained his first commission in the senior cadets at Newcastle, and was promoted to the rank of first lieutenant in Egypt. He took part in the first landing at the Dardanelles, and after a week's fighting was wounded in the right hand. In a letter to his father dated May 5, and received last week, he stated that he was about to return to the front. He also referred to the necessity for recruits. The official message to the father of the deceased reads as follows:—"Lieutenant T. L. Cadell, previously reported wounded, died of wounds received on second occasion."

Another of the men was Sylvester Sydney DAY. Sylvester was born in Adelaide in 1886. He attended Christian Brothers College and then Adelaide University, qualifying as a Librarian. He joined the Adelaide Public Library in 1902 as a junior cadet, became first assistant in 1910 and was a favourite with the borrowers.

At the time of his enlistment Sylvester was living at Beaconsfield Street Unley with his wife Rosalind and 2 children.

He enlisted at Morphettville on the 11th September 1914, was assigned to G Company 16th Battalion as a Lance Corporal. He embarked from Melbourne on the 22nd December 1914 on board HMAT Ceramic, disembarking in Egypt on the 3rd February 1915.

At about 6 pm, on the 25th April the 16th Battalion went ashore at Anzac Cove and made their way into the hills. They occupied a sharp edge of spur that afterwards bore their commanding officer's name, Pope's Hill. They spent the night digging in along the edge under intense rifle fire. For the next five days they stayed there, holding the hill, with Turkish troops to their front and rear.

On the night of May 2nd an attempt was made to capture Baby 700 by way of the Bloody Angle and the western branch of Monash Valley. The attack was a disaster. The 16th Battalion lost 8 officers and 330 men on this night; most of them at the Bloody Angle. Sylvester was one of these men and his body was never identified. He is commemorated on the Lone Pine Memorial, panel 51.

There are many, many stories similar to Thomas and Sylvester's. The aim of the 'Spirits of Gallipoli' project is to find them, to find photographs of the men, newspaper articles, where are they commemorated, and then to make this information available to anyone looking for it. To date, the project holds over 100,000 files for these men.

If you're a young Australian maybe 3 or 4 generations on from the first Anzacs, not interested in family history, but interested in any of your ancestors who may be buried at Gallipoli, where do you start? How do you know who's one of your ancestors? Would this generation know the name of their maternal grandmother's brother?

Another aspect of the project helps people find their family.

We are looking at each of the men, using the State Birth, Death & Marriage records, and listing their families and those of their siblings. This information will bring people to the 1940s – 1950s. Most people know the names of their grandparents. We have listed women under both their maiden and married names. Once you find a familiar name you can look at the details for that man and see if he is part of your family.

As you can imagine, this is a large project, with many aspects of research to be done. If you are researching a Gallipoli man and looking for information, please make contact. If you have a couple of spare moments and would like to help, we would love to hear from you.
